Who in their childhood has not been fascinated by myths and legends. The imaginative world created in the Center is not only a world of fantasy but also a source of inspiration and may act as a guide line for future existence.

The "key of dreams" which was part of the myth for Indians living in the plains of North America now exist. The myth has become a reality. You may find it at the valley of ASPE...

In the shadows of the Lime and Hazelnut trees the Indian tents lie peacefully listening to the whisper of the streams and the meloies in the soft breeze sweeping down from the Pyrenees Montains. The atmosphere you find here helps children to understand the Indian lifestyle and also educates them in the practical and daily life of an Indian. The children are made aware of the harmony of faun and flore in the superb environment of the Valley.
